UNIT 7

7-s Scene: Around Downtown

The Bradbury building at Third Street and Broadway is plain on the outside, but is quite incredible inside. Let's find out just how beautiful it really is. Look at the open stairways. The sun comes through the skylight ceiling.

There are two open cage elevators, one on the left and the other on the right. The lobby with its beautiful floors and brick walls is a good place to start your tour of the building. Do you want to ride the elevator? Let's take it to the top. We are on the fifth floor. Look at the iron and wood railing.

Some people are getting out of the elevator. There are beautiful plants on the stairways. Let's go down the marble stairs and look over the railing to the lobby below. A man with a white jacket is calling the elevator down. Look at the beautiful marble, iron and wood. The lights in the Bradbury building are interesting too.

Do you want to see some other interesting places near here? Let's go outside. Look at the mural on that building over there.

Right across from the Bradbury building on Broadway is Grand Central Market. Let's go in and walk through the aisles. A short man with a white hat, glasses and red sweater is standing at the Broadway Street entrance. Do you need any fruits or vegetables? What about eggs? How much are they a dozen?

There are many fruit and vegetable stalls. Look at the lemons, apples and oranges. Look at the grapefruit next to the oranges. The clerk is putting the grapes above the apples and oranges. There are some avocados next to the oranges. How much are they?

What vegetables do you see? Corn, zucchini, carrots, cucumbers, radishes, avocados, potatoes, peppers, turnips, tomatoes, broccoli, lettuce, cabbage, and onions.

Here's some Mexican bread. Here's a meat counter. He is cutting some beef. How much is the beef per pound? What kinds of cheese do you like? There are many kinds of fish and seafood at Grand Central Market. The man with the mustache is holding his baby. His wife is buying some fish.

Here's another fruit stall. The woman with black hair is wearing a tan coat. It's a little cool today. The man behind the counter sells lunch meat. He is weighing some meat for a customer. How much does it weigh? 1-1/2 pounds. There are lots of little stalls and stores in the market. You may have lunch here also. Would you like a taco?

He sells beans and rice. He is taking some beans out of the sack. Thousands of people shop here every day. On the other side of the market you come out on Hill Street. Above Hill Street you see the new buildings of Bunker Hill.

There are many new apartments, condominiums, office buildings, museums, theaters, hotels, plazas and restaurants. There are some beautiful pieces of sculpture here near the Crocker Center.

A businessman is pulling a cart with his luggage on it. Let's go into the Crocker Center atrium.

A woman with red hair and a woman with black hair are in front of us on the escalator. Look how tall the buildings are through the atrium skylight. The atrium here is a beautiful place to sit and relax during a break from work. Look at the trees, plants, sculpture and fountains. The sun through the glass makes everything light. You see the Music Center to the north from the lobby windows.

It's lunch time. Are you hungry? The men in front of us are stepping off the escalator and going toward the cafeteria. What beautiful views from all floors of the lobby. Hundreds of office workers eat lunch at noon time at this cafeteria every day.

The menu here always has a large variety of food. You serve yourself at a cafeteria. They are getting their spoons, forks, and knives. She is paying for her lunch. You may eat outside with a beautiful view of downtown and a park plaza, or inside if the weather is a little cool.

Let's take another look at the atrium. There's a nice place outside to sit and read. Across from the cafeteria is a Chinese restaurant with a bar. Outside the door on Grand Avenue is a bookstore with lots of magazines. Next to the Crocker Center on Grand is another place for lunch. You order quickly and sit at some tables under umbrellas on sunny days.

Let's get to Pershing Square. From Pershing Square you see the Biltmore Hotel. There are food stands, flower shops, and a newsstand in the square. You may buy hot dogs and hamburgers here.

How do you get to the Arco Towers? First, you walk up 6th Street to the west one block. That tall building is the tallest building in Los Angeles. Here's another interesting building along 6th Street. Do you need your photos fast? Take them here. They develop them in one hour.

Now we are at the intersection of 6th and Grand. Turn right on Grand. Here's the Grand Avenue Bar of the Biltmore Hotel. Here's the Biltmore's pastry shop. You may want to buy some delicious desserts here, but we don't have the time right now. Remember to come back.

Across from the pastry shop at Grand and 5th is the Central Library. It's a wonderful old building. Behind the library are the Arco Towers. They are both taller than the library, however, they are not the tallest buildings in the city.

There is a flower stall across the street from the Arco Plaza. The Arco Plaza below the towers is huge. There are many fine shops and restaurants underground here. Above ground there is a beautiful plaza with a fountain and sculpture. It is named Double Ascension. Two men in business suits are walking by the fountain.

Do you need some money from the bank? Do you know how to use the automatic teller? Let me show you how. First, put your card in the slot. What is your identification (I.D.) number? Push the buttons that are the same as your I.D. number. Wait a second. How much money do you need? Press $20.00. Is that correct? Press "Correct". Now, take your money. Take out your card. Let's go.

Do you want to go shopping? Do you want to spend some of that $20.00? Let's go to the Broadway at 7th and Flower Street. There is a revolving restaurant on top of the Hyatt Regency Hotel, a part of the Broadway Plaza shopping mall. We enter the plaza on 7th St. The skylight lets the sunlight in.

It's Christmas time at the shopping mall. The "snow" is falling from the skylight onto the little winter scene. There are some Christmas trees with white lights. There are holiday decorations among the more than thirty stores in the Broadway Plaza.

There are fine men's and women's shops here, but we don't have the time or the money to shop right now. Do you think that we have time for a cookie? Sure. Why not?

This is the hotel lobby of the Hyatt Regency. People are checking in. There's a bar if you are thirsty. Well, it's getting late. We have many things to see and do before it gets dark. Let's go back outside.

7-D Dialog

(Ann is at the door of the Skyroom Restaurant at the L.A. Towers Hotel. She is looking for Susan and Richard.)

(Richard gets up from the table and goes toward Ann.)

Ann: Richard, hi, it's good to see you.

(They kiss and hug).

Richard: It's so good to see you, too. How are you doing?

Ann: Just fine, and you?

Richard: Great! I'm enjoying your city. There are so many beautiful places to see. The weather is wonderful, too. I think that I want to live here.

Ann: Really? Don't you like Chicago?

Richard: Sure, I still like Chicago, but there are some things I like better about Los Angeles.

Ann: What do you like better about Los Angeles?

Richard: The weather.

Ann: Of course. And what about our beaches?

Richard: Yeah. When are we going to go to the beach?

Ann: Soon. Maybe next week. So, Susan is showing you around?

Richard: Yeah. We were at Marina Del Rey this morning, and Exposition Park early this afternoon. Then we were at USC around 3 p.m. but you weren't there. Where were you?

Ann: I was downtown at a restaurant near the Music Center at 3 o'clock.

Richard: You were! We were at Chez Vous restaurant near the Music Center at 5:30. Which restaurant were you at?

Ann: Chez Vous too, but I was only there until 5:15.

Richard: Well, finally we're together.

Ann: Yeah. Where are you sitting?:

Richard: Over there, by the window.

Ann: Oh yeah, there's Susan.

(Ann and Richard walk over to Susan.)

Susan: Hi, Ann, how are you?

Ann: Fine, and you?

Susan: Fine, just a little tired. You are hard to find.

Ann: Yeah, I know. I never stay in one place very long. I am always moving.

Susan: Do you want to order a drink, Ann?

Ann: Yes, I do. Ah, ... no, maybe some coffee.

Waiter: What would you like?

Ann: I'd like an espresso, please.

Waiter: And would you two like something else, a dessert with your drinks?

Susan: No, thank you.

Richard: I'd like a piece of chocolate cake, please.

Waiter: Would you like some ice cream with that?

Richard: Yes, please.

(Ann lights a cigarette.)

Susan: What kind of cigarettes are you smoking now, Ann?

Ann: Nicotons.

Susan: Isn't that your brand too, Richard?

Richard: Yes, it is.

Ann: So, Richard, what are you going to do tomorrow?

Richard: I don't know yet. I want to see Little Tokyo and Chinatown soon.

Ann: When you go to Little Tokyo, try to see the Bradbury Building too. It isn't far from there.

Richard: What are you doing tomorrow, Ann?

Ann: I have a class in the morning, but I'm going to be free in the afternoon.

Richard: Would you like to go with me to Chinatown tomorrow?

Ann: Yes, I would.

Susan: Do you mind if I come with you two? I'm free too and would like to go to a Chinese restaurant for dinner. I love Chinese food.

Richard: Sure, come with us.

Ann: Yeah. Let's all go together.

Richard: Where do you want us to meet tomorrow and at what time?

Ann: Why don't you both meet me at my house at about 4:00.

Richard: O.K. Susan, would you pick me up?

Susan: Sure. Ann, I don't remember exactly how to get to your place. Give me some directions.

Ann: Let's see. From the L.A. Tower Hotel, take the Pasadena Freeway to Glenarm. Turn left on Glenarm. Go three blocks north and then turn right on Buena Vista Street.

Susan: O.K. I know now. Your house is halfway up the hill, isn't it?

Ann: Yes. You walk up about 72 stairs.

Susan: Oh yes, it's impossible to forget them.

Ann: What are you going to wear tomorrow, Susan?

Susan: I think blue jeans. Let's go to a casual place.

Richard: Do you want to go dancing at the hotel disco?

(He looks at both of them.)

Ann: Oh, I really don't have the time to dance tonight. It's getting late. I need to do a few things before I go to bed. Sorry. Maybe another evening.

Richard: That's all right. I understand. You need to study.

Susan: I'm getting tired too. Maybe later in the week.

Richard: O.K. Well, let's go then.

(Richard's cigarettes fall out of his pocket. Ann picks them up and gives them to him.)

Richard: Thanks.

Ann: You're welcome.

(Ann leaves first.)

Susan: See you tomorrow, Ann.

Ann: Yeah, around 4:00.

Richard: See you later.

Ann: 'Bye.

Richard and Susan: 'Bye.

(Richard and Susan get up from the table and leave the bar. Susan and Richard go to Richard's room. Richard goes in first.)

Richard: Turn on the light please, Susan.

Susan: Where is the switch?

Richard: Right next to the door.

Susan: Well, I need to go now. I'm getting tired.

Richard: When are you going to pick me up tomorrow? How long does it take to get to Ann's?

Susan: It takes about 20 minutes from here, so why don't we say 3:30.

Richard: O.K. See you here tomorrow at 3:30.

Susan: All right.

Richard: Thanks so much for a wonderful day.

(He touches her on the arm.)

Susan: You're welcome. I enjoyed it too.

(She touches him on his arm. They hug.)

(Next afternoon at 3:30. Susan calls Richard's room from the hotel lobby.)

Susan: I'm in the lobby.

Richard: I'm coming right down.

(They meet and hug quickly and walk out to the car.)

(On the Pasadena Freeway)

Richard: What freeway are we on?

Susan: This is the Pasadena Freeway.

Richard: It's older than the Harbor Freeway, isn't it?

Susan: Yes, it is. In fact, it's the oldest freeway in L.A.

Richard: Really! I like the hills and parks along the way.

(They arrive and get out of the car.)

Richard: Where's her house?

Susan: Up there. We are going to climb 25 stairs before we get to her place.

Richard: You're kidding?

Susan: No, I'm not. Let's start climbing.

Richard: Isn't there an escalator?

Susan: No, there isn't. Why don't you fly up?

Richard: Very funny. I don't know how to fly, but I do know how to jump.

Susan: Jump? How high do you jump? 25 stairs at a time?

(Susan laughs. They begin climbing the stairs.)

Richard: My legs hurt.

Susan: Do you want me to push you up?

Richard: No, that's O.K. How often do you come to Ann's?

Susan: Not very often with these stairs. She usually comes to my place when we get together. Here we are! This is her place.

(Richard knocks on the door.)

Ann: Hi, come in.

(Susan and Richard go in.)

Richard: What a climb!

Ann: Yeah. I get my exercise on those stairs every day.

Richard: You have a great place, Ann, but those stairs!

Ann: Yeah, I know. I'm going to move next month if I find a place downtown. I want to be closer to the university and work.

Richard: And fewer steps.

Ann: Right. Let's go. It's easier going down.

Richard: Great.

(They all leave Ann's house. They are going to Chinatown.)
