

DELAWARE VALLEY

BeadSociety

OPEN HOUSE

Some of the techniques that will be demonstrated at the Open House are bead crochet, bead stringing, wire work, metal work, and kumihimo beading.

Founded in 2002, the DVBS brings together some of the area's most innovative jewelry makers in an organization dedicated to the promotion of original handmade jewelry by local artists. Members are from counties all along the Delaware River. The organization has become a thriving arts community that includes beaders, stringers, wire-workers, metalsmiths, glass bead lampworkers, fiber artists, polymer and Precious Metal clay artists, and others who incorporate both novel and traditional materials and techniques in their work. It includes members with a variety of skill levels, from beginner to advanced.
