

A Dutch Colonial Christmas with The Enslows

Anne and Ridley Enslow will accompany their singing with instruments authentic to the 18th century, including the hammered dulcimer and violin—in this case, a violin made in France in 1776. A brief and entertaining history of the song and how it fits into a Colonial Christmas will be given before each tune. The program features carefully authenticated colonial Christmas songs and instrumental music of the era, as well as several special Dutch Christmas songs. The show will conclude with well-known sing along carols (in English), followed by apple cider and Dutch cookies.
