

Living Historian Kenneth J. Serfass will be here as Ulysses S. Grant for a lively presentation and discussion of the first 4-Star General of the US Army, the 18th President of the United States, and often misunderstood man.

Grant's life could be great example to young people as well as adults about many positive traits and values that seem to be lost in today's heroes we all look up to for inspiration. Serfass's presentations are given in first person, allowing him to personify Ulysses S. Grant as a living person, far more than a reenactor who provides a lesson in "how THEY did things" and much more in the moment of meeting an historical figure telling you "how we ARE DOING things" as if an open page from history, come to life.
