

Alchemy of the Sole

Lindsay Luise Abromaitis-Smith – Artist Reception and Open House

As an artist, writer, and healer living with ALS, Lindsay is dedicated to making art that helps people remember what is essential to being. Her commitment to being creative throughout the progression of the disease is an act of empowerment and defiance as much as it is one of acceptance and surrender. Lindsay began her artistic career in puppetry and performance. Her writing on ritual through puppetry and the use of the idol in art was published in The New York Arts Magazine's summer 2011 issue. In 2012, shortly before she was diagnosed with ALS, Lindsay debuted two puppet works in NYC. After living and working in NYC for the past 12 years, Lindsay moved to the Toshiko Takaazu Studio in Quakertown, NJ as an artist in residence in June of 2015. She is now exploring painting and bodywork using her feet, while also giving energy to writing, gardening and cooking.

Lindsay's artwork is on display for the month of August at the North County Branch Library. In addition to meeting Lindsey and viewing her artwork, there will be two video presentations: the first is an excerpt from a wonderful theater piece by Lindsay: "Bloom. She is Descending", and the other a recent Channel 12 TV appearance. Light refreshments and beverages will be available.
